One of our RELIGIOUS EDUCATION teachers decided to see how well the young children had paid attention to her talks. She asked three students what they remembered of the story of the crucifixion. One said, "Well, the cross was heavy – a man had to help." Another said, "It got dark as night and thundered." The third said, "Well, He came out the third day, saw His shadow and went back in, and they had six more weeks of winter."
